

BlueFinity Enters Partnership with Uniware to Expand the Availability of Evoke

RELEASE DATE: Sep 26, 2018

BlueFinity is entering a strategic distribution partnership with Uniware that will enable Uniware to introduce Evoke to the market.

This is the second distribution partnership for BlueFinity this month. The company also appointed Ashwood Computer, a leading software, services and support company based in Cincinnati, to distribute Evoke in the USA.

Uniware will distribute Evoke to businesses across Australia and New Zealand and provide support, development and implementation services. The company will also use Evoke to design and develop its own apps for the benefit of its customers.

Bluefinitiy will benefit from the support of Uniware's experienced technology, development and sales teams to market Evoke.

Evoke is a low-code/no-code RAD platform that allows any company to use their existing staff to design, develop and deploy business apps cost-effectively across multiple mobile and desktop devices.

Using Evoke companies can create web, hybrid and native apps that fully integrate and synchronise with back-end systems and databases.

The solution is flexible and scalable, allowing businesses to create apps that are future proof and evolve in line with their development and growth.

Evoke supports most database platforms (both SQL and MultiValue) and enables the creation of apps and the extension of enterprise applications in a fraction of the time and cost of other methods.

Uniware will distribute Evoke to businesses across Australia and New Zealand and provide support, development and implementation services. The company will also use Evoke to design and develop its own apps for the benefit of its customers. "We're delighted Uniware has become our distribution partner," said Malcolm Carrol, Director of BlueFinity. "It is an excellent company with a tremendous reputation as a provider of solutions and services across the region. It has a significant presence in the MultiValue market and Evoke is currently viewed as one of the most exciting additions to this market for many years, as it offers a truly mainstream product for MultiValue."
